
Each point represents one country. Diamond markers show class medians. GNI per capita is shown on a logarithmic scale because country-level income values vary widely. The plot describes association between development, income and TB burden class; it does not imply causation.