
Standardized mean differences compare class means on a common scale. Positive values indicate higher average feature values among high TB burden countries, while negative values indicate lower average values. Dotted lines mark |0.5| and |0.8| effect-size reference thresholds.